Get Expert Cleaning Advice from Kyzen's Dr. Mike Bixenman at the SMTA Tampa Chapter August Meeting

NASHVILLE —August 2010 — Kyzen, a world leading provider of environmentally responsible precision cleaning products for electronics and high-technology manufacturing operations, announces that Dr. Mike Bixenman will speak on Eco-Centric Electronic Assembly Cleaning Agents at the upcoming SMTA Tampa Bay Chapter August meeting, scheduled to take place Wednesday, August 18, 2010 at the Young-Rainey STAR Center in Largo, FL.

Dr. Bixenman will speak on the topic of eco-friendly cleaning solutions, reflecting on 20 years of research into green high-performance cleaning technology. Dr. Bixenman also will participate in an industry panel to further discuss today's cleaning challenges and their affect on the environment. Additionally, the panel will address the importance of cleaning in the electronics industry today. This is an opportunity for attendees to gain a better understanding of the technologies driving cleaning processes and different types of cleaning methods, as well as how the electronics industry is meeting the challenges.

Dr. Bixenman is CTO of Kyzen and current chairperson of the recently revised IPC Cleaning and Alternatives Handbook Committee and the upcoming IPC/SMTA High-Performance Cleaning Symposium to be held in Chicago from November 16-18, 2010. Dr. Bixenman is a well-known cleaning expert in the electronics manufacturing industry. Over the past 20 years, Dr. Bixenman has published more than 100 papers and articles as well as participated in numerous technical presentations, seminars and expert panel discussions. He holds four earned degrees including a Doctorate in Business Administration.
