The Test Connection Earns 2026 PCBAA Outstanding Contributor Award

Baltimore, MD – June 2026 – The Test Connection, Inc., a provider of electronic test and manufacturing solutions, has been recognized by the Printed Circuit Board Association of America (PCBAA) as a recipient of a 2026 Outstanding Contributor Award. The award was presented during the association’s annual meetings, honoring members who have made meaningful contributions to advancing the organization’s mission.

TTCI joined PCBAA in 2025 as the first and only test engineering company in the organization. Since then, the company has taken an active role in supporting initiatives focused on strengthening domestic PCB manufacturing and reinforcing the U.S. electronics supply chain.

“I’m honored to accept this on behalf of the team at The Test Connection,” said Bert Horner, President of TTCI. “When we joined PCBAA, it was clear how important the mission was. This past year, we leaned in with more time and resources, and it’s been great to be part of the work being done. We’re looking forward to continuing that effort, especially when it comes to supporting the reshoring of PCB fabrication and strengthening the broader electronics ecosystem.”

With more than 45 years of experience, TTCI specializes in in-circuit test (ICT), functional test development, and boundary scan solutions for high-reliability industries including aerospace, defense, medical, and automotive. As an ISO 9001:2015 certified and ITAR-registered company, TTCI plays a critical role in ensuring product quality and reliability across complex electronic assemblies.

As the industry continues to focus on domestic manufacturing and supply chain resilience, TTCI’s involvement in PCBAA highlights the growing importance of test engineering in delivering reliable, high-quality electronics built in the United States.
